Report of the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization

GENERAL

The responsibilities of the Immigration and Naturalization Service cover many phases of the activities and control of aliens from the time petitions are filed for immigrant visas through the entry formalities and the adjudication of requests for various privileges accorded aliens once in the United States, and finally through the naturalization process to United States citizenship. To these positive actions within the law must be added duties of officers who see that the law is enforced by the exclusion process at ports of entry, by guarding the ports and long land borders from surreptitious entries, and by searching out other violators of the immigration and nationality laws, following through to the ultimate deportation of aliens in illegal status.

The year's activities may best be summarized in terms of the operations of the various organizational units of the Service which follow.

TRAVEL CONTROL AND ADJUDICATION

Travel Control

Travel control is a general term that covers many facets of immigration work. Historically the examination of persons for admissibility was one of the first functions of the Service, and continues to be one of its more important responsibilities. As the body of immigration law has developed, other duties have accrued under the general heading of travel control and adjudications.

For example, before an alien seeking preference status under the law or claiming nonquota status as the immediate relative of a citizen may be issued a visa by the consular office of the State Department, an officer of this Service must approve a visa petition attesting to the validity of the claim for such status. Likewise, determinations must be made as to eligibility for adjustment of status to permanent resident or immigrant status either through special legislation, such as adjustment to permanent status of Cuban refugees or through the adjustments available in the Immigration and Nationality Act. These and many related functions form the broad base of travel control and adjudications.

Inspections

Facilitation of Travel. During the fiscal year 1967, the Service took a number of steps within the framework of the immigration and nationality laws to ease and expedite the examination of the millions of persons who arrived from abroad and to make them feel genuinely welcome.

The stopover privilege for aliens in transit who qualify for admission without a visa on their way to another country was extended for periods up to Inspection lanes then and now. Forty years ago, 516,000 persons entered the United States at San Ysidro, Calif. In fiscal year 1967, the figure was 22,500,000.

10 days. This privilege also was extended to aliens coming from abroad who wished to enter the United States enroute to Canada to attend Expo 67, and an expeditious procedure was effected for the inspection of those visitors to Expo 67 who traveled to, from, or through the United States.

Travel by Mexican nationals to the United States was further facilitated by expanding the use of the Nonresident Mexican Alien Border Crossing Card, which theretofore was limited to use only on the United States-Mexican border. Mexican nationals now need only to present the border crossing card and a passport when coming to the United States from any part of the world.

At busier airports, some inspection lanes have been designated for the accommodation of U.S. citizens during peak traffic periods. This has made it possible to clear waiting areas more rapidly after plane arrivals because inspection of U.S. citizens is accomplished in minimum time.

In accordance with Presidential directives, many of the changes made and under study are calculated to assist interagency programs that encourage international travel as a means of promoting international understanding and a more favorable balance of payments for the United States.

Admissions

More than 206.8 million entrants were inspected at over 400 ports, and admitted into the United States during fiscal year 1967. This number exceeded last year's figure by 5 percent and reached an alltime high. Persons who frequently crossed over the land borders or who arrived as crewmen accounted for 96 percent of the total. The others arrived as vessel or aircraft passengers at United States sea and air ports. Contributing to the large total was the attraction of Expo 67. United States bound flights preinspected at Montreal were up by 40 percent, and the number of passengers inspected increased by 112 percent. At Champlain, N.Y., the main surface route between New York and Montreal, huge traffic problems had to be solved—as on Memorial Day when 236 buses and 8,543 other vehicles with a combined passenger load of 42,922 persons were inspected.

The number of entries of aliens exceeded 120 million. Of these entries, 114.6 million were made by border crossers from Mexico and Canada, an increase of 5 percent over last year. The remainder consisted of 2 million crewmen and 3.5 million immigrants, documented nonimmigrants, and lawful residents returning from temporary visits to countries other than Canada or Mexico.

Immigrants. Fiscal year 1967 was the first full year in which the Act of October 3, 1965 had been in effect. The Act, Public Law 89-236, provides for three major groups; "special immigrants," principally natives of Western Hemisphere countries, and "immediate relatives," i.e., the spouses, children, and parents of U.S. citizens. These two categories, not subject to numerical limitations, are the old nonquota classes. The third group, those limited by a numerical ceiling, corresponds to the former quota category with some changes in priorities or preferences, but still favors relatives of citizens and resident aliens and aliens with skills and other occupations needed in the United States. The quantitative limit of 170,000 applies only to countries other than those of the Western Hemisphere.

The 361,972 aliens given status as lawful permanent residents of the United States during the year exceeded the 1966 figure by 12 percent, and was the largest number admitted since 1924. Of that total, 290,027 obtained immigrant visas abroad and were admitted to the United States. The remaining 71,945 were already in the United States and adjusted their status to that of permanent resident.

The table below points up some of the effects of the new legislation.

Immigrants admitted: Years ended June 30, 1966 and 1967

¹ Includes 4,106 conditional entrants in 1967, and 2,456 in 1966 whose immigrant status does not become permanent until two years after entry.

² Includes 40 aliens adjusting under special legislation in 1967 and 9 in 1966.

"Special immigrants" admitted to the United States numbered 126,370. All but a few in this category were natives of Western Hemisphere countries and their spouses and children. Predominate groups were natives of Mexico, 39,994; Canada, 22,711; the Dominican Republic, 11,396; and Cuba, 8,539. Not included in this number are the 25,752 Cubans whose status was adjusted under Public Law 89-732 (see page 6).

Particular interest centers on this classification because beginning on July 1, 1968, these persons will be subject to a numerical limitation of 120,000 as provided in the Act of October 3, 1965, unless Congress decides otherwise. This will be the first time that Western Hemisphere countries will be limited as to numbers admitted to the United States. A select commission appointed to study this section of the law is considering the need for the ceiling and its affect on relations with our Western Hemisphere neighbors.

The number of "immediate relatives" admitted as immigrants totaled 46,903, coming principally from the countries of Germany, Italy, China and Taiwan, the Philippines, and Greece. Parents of U.S. citizens numbered 8,799 in contrast to 3,799 in 1965 when, prior to the new law, they were subject to quotas.

Public Law 89-236 amended Section 203(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act by setting up a new system of preferences within the ceiling of 170,000, consisting of seven classes in place of the four which existed previously. The first, second, fourth, and fifth preferences are allocated to specified relatives of citizens and lawful permanent residents of the United States. The third and sixth preferences are for professional and highly skilled persons and others needed in the U.S. economy. The seventh preference pertains to certain refugees, and is roughly comparable to the Refugee-Escapee Act.

During the year, 79,671 close relatives of citizens and permanent resident aliens were admitted to the United States under the four relative preferences.

The Act further provides specific maximum numbers to be assigned to each priority group, but specifies that numbers not used in the relative preferences may descend to the next priority group (except the third preference) and so on to the fifth preference.

The preference allotments and the numbers admitted are shown below:

Preference	Allotment	Admitted
Total	125,800	79,671
1st preference—Unmarried sons and daughters of U.S. citizens over 21 years of age.....	34,000	1,317
2d preference—Spouses, unmarried sons and daughters of resident aliens and their children.....	34,000	19,157
4th preference—Married sons and daughters of U.S. citizens, their spouses and children.....	17,000	15,652
5th preference—Brothers and sisters of U.S. citizens, their spouses and children.....	40,800	43,545

Two other provisions of Public Law 89-236 affect the figures for the period ending June 30, 1967. Until June 30, 1968, any visa numbers unused during the prior year may be placed in a pool of numbers for use in the succeeding year. The other factor is that a maximum of 20,000 numbers may be used by any single country in a given year. Thus admissions from Italy, with a large backlog of brothers and sisters in the fifth preference classification, might have reached many thousands more than the 19,970 that were admitted within the national ceiling.

There were 9,979 members of the professions or persons with exceptional ability in the sciences or the arts admitted or adjusted under the third preference. Aliens born in the countries of Asia accounted for 85 percent of the third preference group, and most of them were cases of adjustment under Section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act; many were Chinese parolees admitted from Hong Kong. Immigrants admitted under the sixth preference to fill jobs in the United States for which a shortage of workers existed numbered 4,876. Third and sixth preference principals were accompanied by 10,510 spouses and children.

IMMIGRANTS SUBJECT TO NUMERICAL LIMITATIONS ADMITTED 1963 - 1967

Under the seventh preference, 4,106 refugees conditionally entered the United States, and 2,545 already in the United States were accorded lawful permanent resident status. For the first time, refugee legislation is incorporated into general immigration legislation.

While the preference allotments theoretically would use all of the 170,000 numbers, 40,635 immigrants were admitted as nonpreference immigrants within this ceiling. It may be anticipated that this number will decrease or disappear entirely as the use of the preferences becomes more prevalent after July 1, 1968. Immigrants admitted as nonpreference included 19,255 from the United Kingdom, 5,828 from Germany, and 1,726 from Ireland. These countries, with generous quotas under the old national origins plan, have not heretofore needed to petition for preferences within the numerical limitations since visas were readily available.

Other countries with sizable numbers of nonpreference admissions were Sweden, 1,487; Switzerland, 1,470; France, 1,446; the Netherlands, 1,111; and Norway, 1,059.

Nonimmigrants. Aliens admitted to the United States for temporary periods are categorized as nonimmigrants. There are a variety of classifications within that category. Exclusive of citizens of Canada and Mexico who enter frequently as border crossers, and exclusive of alien crewmen, a total of 2,608,193 nonimmigrants was admitted during the year, exceeding the number admitted in fiscal year 1966 by 11 percent.

The following table indicates the various classifications under which nonimmigrants were admitted.

As may be noted from the table, visitors for pleasure or tourists comprise the greatest number of nonimmigrants. Most of the visitors, exclusive of those from contiguous countries, came from the United Kingdom, Germany, France, the Netherlands, Italy, and Japan.

Of the 63,370 foreign students admitted to attend educational institutions in the United States, only 6,153 were from Europe, principally the United Kingdom, Germany, France, and Greece. Canada and Mexico accounted for 14,239 and 7,391, respectively. There were 7,121 from South America and 1,656 from Africa. The 14,808 students from Asia included 3,019 from India, 2,094 from Taiwan, 1,624 from Japan, 1,287 from Hong Kong, 1,188 from Thailand, and 1,096 from Iran.

There were 38,630 exchange visitors admitted to the United States to participate in programs designed to further international cultural exchange.

IMMIGRANTS EXEMPT FROM NUMERICAL LIMITATIONS ADMITTED 1963 - 1967

NONIMMIGRANTS ADMITTED 1963 - 1967

Among those admitted as exchange visitors were 3,483 from the United Kingdom, 2,537 from the Philippines, 2,440 from India, 2,054 from Germany, and 1,828 from Japan.

Under the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, which permit the temporary importation of workers if like workers are not available in the United States, 9,352 persons of distinguished merit and ability, 3,330 trainees, and 57,328 other temporary workers were brought to the United States. Of the latter group, some were admitted under specific labor programs. Included were 18,035 Canadian agricultural workers and woodsmen, 29,087 workers from the Caribbean area, 356 sheepherders from the Basque country, and 7,703 Mexican agricultural workers.

Other nonimmigrants included 42,916 foreign government officials, 2,442 NATO officials, 18,386 official representatives to international organizations, 3,257 members of the foreign news media, and 9,983 treaty traders and investors. There were 204,936 travelers admitted in transit through the United States to other countries.

Crewmen. Alien crewmen numbering 2,036,877 arrived at United States ports during the year and were granted shore leave. The program was continued under which bona fide crewmen are issued landing cards designed to provide a means of ready identification and to facilitate their landing.

United States Citizens. The entries of U.S. citizens rose from 82.6 million in fiscal year 1966 to 86.6 million this year. Of this number, 80.5 million were border crossers, 1 million were crewmen, and the remaining 5.1 million were citizens returning from visits to countries other than Mexico and Canada. The number of returning U.S. citizens reflected an increase of some 364 thousand citizens who traveled abroad in 1967.

Cuban Refugees. During the ceremony at the Statue of Liberty on October 3, 1965, where the new immigration act was signed, President Johnson declared that Cubans seeking refuge in the United States would be welcome here. Arrangements were subsequently made for the orderly movement of refugees to this country from Cuba and during fiscal year 1967, 44,337 came here by airlift from Cuba. In cooperation with the Department of State, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and other agencies of the Government, the Service established effective screening procedures for these refugees.

On November 2, 1966, Public Law 89-732 became effective. This Act provided for the adjustment to permanent resident status of qualified Cuban refugees who had been in the United States for 2 years or longer. By the end of fiscal year 1967, 41,052 applications had been received and 25,752 Cubans had become permanent residents. The Act also provided that certain Cubans, who were already in the United States as immigrants, could have their date of admission as immigrants changed to a date not to exceed 30 months before the effective date of the Act. The advantage of this provision is that residence for naturalization can be established at an earlier date. In fiscal year 1967, 1,562 Cubans had taken advantage of the provision. Under a third provision of this Act, the Service was enabled to adjust to permanent residents 1,882 other Western Hemisphere aliens whose applications for adjustment of status to permanent resident had been filed with the Attorney General prior to December 1, 1965, the effective date of Public Law 89-236, which prohibited adjustment of status under Section 245 for aliens from the Western Hemisphere.

Inadmissible Aliens

Exclusion. The inspection of aliens at our ports of entry is to assure that those admitted meet the qualifications prescribed in the law, to set time limits for control on the departure of those admitted for a temporary period, and to turn back the aliens who do not qualify for entry.

Of the 213,335 aliens not permitted to enter the United States in fiscal year 1967, 20,295 were crewmen who were denied the privilege of landing, 157 were stowaways found and detained on the vessels on which they arrived, 144,691 applied as border crossers and were refused admission, and 47,724 others withdrew their applications for admission in preference to formal exclusion proceedings. Of the 468 aliens who were excluded after hearings before a special inquiry officer, 66 percent lacked documents required for admission. Thirteen were excluded on subversive grounds, 10 were found by the Public Health Service to be inadmissible for medical reasons, and 67 had criminal, immoral, or narcotic records.

Waivers of Inadmissibility. Under statutory authority, the Attorney General waived certain grounds of inadmissibility for 1,275 alien spouses, parents, and children of U.S. citizens or permanent resident aliens whose exclusion would have resulted in extreme hardship to the U.S. citizen or permanent resident alien relatives and if the admission of such aliens would not be against the national welfare, safety, or security of the United States. In addition, 5,057 waivers were granted to nonimmigrants whose admission was found to be in the public interest.

Alien defectors from Communism may be granted visas for entry into the United States if they can establish that they were actively opposed to that ideology for at least 5 years immediately prior to their application and if it can also be clearly shown that their admission would be in the public interest. In fiscal year 1967, 73 such aliens were admitted under the statutory authority provided for this purpose.

Adjudications

For the first time in immigration history, applications and petitions for various benefits and privileges under the immigration laws exceeded 1 million, and Service officers adjudicated 993,324 such applications and petitions. This was an increase in cases adjudicated of more than 16 percent over fiscal year 1966.

Family of 12, most of whom were beneficiaries of section 245, which provides for adjustment of status to permanent resident. The two youngest children were born in New York City.

Adjustments

Adjustment of Status—Section 245. With respect to applications for adjustment of status to permanent residence under Section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, there was a leveling off of receipts of adjustment applications in fiscal year 1967. However, the total of 36,381 applications received was 59 percent higher than in fiscal 1965, the last full year prior to the Act of October 3, 1965. Accounting for the higher number of applications is the provision in Public Law 89-236 which authorizes issuance until June 30, 1968 of the unused visa numbers of the prior fiscal year, thus permitting full utilization of the 170,000 annual allocation of visa numbers. Since prior to the new Act as many as 80,000 unused numbers in a year were lost, this greater availability of visa numbers has enabled aliens to obtain such numbers and apply for adjustment under Section 245.

There were 36,381 applications for adjustment under Section 245. This number added to the 41,052 applications under Section 1 of the Act of November 2, 1966 totals 77,433 and exceeds last year's record total by 47 percent.

Included among the 38,115 aliens granted a change of status to lawful permanent residence pursuant to Section 245 in fiscal year 1967 were 11,123 third preference aliens and 2,431 sixth preference aliens.

There were also 8,907 preference relatives whose status was adjusted in the United States, and 2,545 refugees were adjusted under the proviso to Section 203(a)(7) of the Act. China and Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Spain were the principal countries of birth represented by the latter number. Also granted lawful permanent residence under Section 245 were 9,079 parents, spouses, and unmarried minor children of U.S. citizens who, as "immediate relatives", are not subject to the numerical limitation of the Act.

Creation of Record of Lawful Entry. The Act of October 3, 1965, advanced to June 30, 1948, the date prior to which an applicant for creation of a record of lawful entry must establish that he has resided continuously in the United States. As a result, fiscal year 1966 showed a 25-percent increase over the previous year, and the 2,887 cases of records of lawful entry created amounted to 13 percent more than in fiscal year 1966. Applications were denied in 130 cases.

Other Adjustments. During the year, a total of 3,210 refugee-escapees previously paroled into the United States under the Act of July 14, 1960, were examined by Service officers, found admissible, and accorded permanent resident status. Although adjustments under this provision of law are gradually phasing out since the enactment of the Act of July 14, 1960, a total of 16,072 refugee-escapees have become permanent residents. Also adjusted to permanent resident status were 37 former officials of foreign governments or of international organizations and members of their families under Section 13 of the Act of September 11, 1957, which authorizes a maximum of 50 such adjustments annually. Adjustments also included 789 suspension of deportation cases and 343 others.

Petitions Adjudicated

Visa Petitions. As stated earlier, immediate relatives of citizens are not subject to the numerical limitation of the Act. Immediate relative status may be accorded, however, only upon approval of a petition filed with the Service. During the year, 49,500 such petitions were approved, a substantial increase over the 32,879 approved in 1965. One reason for the increase is that under Public Law 89-236 any person eligible must petition for immediate relative status in order to conserve visa numbers within the numerical limitation for issuance to immigrants who are subject to such limitation. Included in the total petitions for immediate relatives of citizens were 1,918 petitions approved for orphans. Service officers abroad adjudicated 1,111 of the orphan petitions.

The first preference category is reserved for unmarried sons and daughters of U.S. citizens. There were 1,621 petitions approved to accord such status. Petitions were approved for second preference spouses and unmarried sons and daughters of lawful permanent resident aliens in 22,321 cases. Fourth preference is accorded to married sons and daughters of U.S. citizens. Fifth preference classification is for brothers and sisters of U.S. citizens. Petitions approved for fourth and fifth preference categories totaled 34,242 in fiscal year 1967, a 32-percent increase over last year.

The third preference classification is for aliens who qualify as members of the professions or persons of exceptional ability in the sciences or arts. A total of 18,314 such petitions was approved and 694 denied after appropriate inquiry and investigation. The large number of approved petitions in this category, coupled with the fact that spouses and children of the beneficiaries are entitled to the same classification, brought about the establishment of a waiting list for visa numbers in this category, which is limited by law to 17,000 numbers annually. Detailed reports were furnished the Congress in each approved case, as required by law.

The sixth preference classification is for aliens who qualify as skilled or unskilled workers in occupations for which workers in the United States are in short supply as certified by the Department of Labor pursuant to Section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended. There were 11,974 approved petitions, seven times as many as in the previous year. Detailed reports were also furnished to the Congress in these cases. Denied were 1,121 petitions in this category.

Under the seventh or refugee preference, 10,200 visa numbers annually may be assigned to refugees. Up to 5,100 of these numbers may be allocated to refugees in the United States who have been continuously physically present here for 2 years prior to application for adjustment of status. In contrast to the previous year, when 4,743 such applications were received, 1,461 refugees in the United States applied for conversion to permanent residence under this provision.

Petitions to Import Temporary Workers. Petitions may be filed by employers in the United States to import for temporary periods aliens of distinguished merit and ability, workers in short supply in the United States, and industrial trainees. Petitions may be filed for one alien worker or for a group of up to several thousand. In fiscal year 1967, 16,340 petitions were filed compared to 14,699 received the previous year. There were 15,333 petitions approved and 678 denied. Before reaching a decision in many cases, the Service consulted Government agencies and representatives of labor and management.

Applications Adjudicated

During the year, 297,629 applications by nonimmigrants to extend their temporary stay in the United States were adjudicated as compared to 265,269 last year. This was an increase of 32,360 over fiscal year 1966 and in line with the continuing increase in alien tourist visitors in the United States. Alien border crossing cards permitting temporary entry into the United States were issued to 210,945 residents of Canada and Mexico who enter the United States frequently. Upon application, 15,225 nonimmigrants in the United States were permitted to change from one nonimmigrant class to another.

Schools desiring to enroll foreign students must first be authorized to do so by the Service. Foreign students or exchange aliens must receive permission before they may transfer from one school or exchange program to another, and students must obtain permission before they may accept part-time employment. There were 48,671 applications in these categories approved during the year, an increase of 22 percent over fiscal year 1966.

U.S. citizens who frequently cross the land borders were issued 11,485 certificates of identity to facilitate their reentry into the United States; 115,434 applications for reentry permits, extension of reentry permits, and duplicate alien registration cards were adjudicated, up 19 percent over fiscal year 1966. Permission to reapply was accorded 2,569 previously deported aliens, and advance permission to return was given 182 lawfully resident aliens who otherwise would have been inadmissible upon return to the United States following temporary absence abroad.

Aliens admitted to the United States to participate in exchange programs must depart and reside in the country of their birth or last residence, or under certain circumstances in another foreign country, for 2 years before they can apply for immigrant visas or adjust their status to permanent residence. The foreign residence requirement may be waived only when it is established that compliance with the requirement would cause exceptional hardship to the alien's U.S. citizen or lawfully resident alien spouse or child, or upon request of an interested Government agency. A waiver may not be granted unless a favorable recommendation is received by the Service from the Secretary of State. There were 1,115 waivers granted in hardship cases and 429 granted at the request of other Government agencies during the year.

Policies, Procedures, and Public Information

The applications and petitions discussed above that are adjudicated by Travel Control deal with benefits under the immigration laws which affect vitally the rights of aliens to enter or remain in the United States and their activities while in this country. Many types of applications may be denied as a matter of discretion. Ever alert to the need to accord due process to applicants and petitioners, the Service continued to expand its efforts to assure high standards of fairness in all of its adjudications. Proposed regulations were also published to implement the Act popularly known as the Public Information Act, which becomes effective on July 4, 1967. Involved in these proposals was the transfer into the regulations of many adjudicative guides which were deemed to affect the public.

Toward that objective, additional information affecting the public was published in the Code of Federal Regulations. Among the matters published were procedures implementing the Act of November 2, 1966; procedures relating to labor certifications in connection with visa petitions filed on behalf of aliens who seek to engage in employment in the United States; and clarification of procedures for revocation of approved visa petitions. To implement the President's desire to promote better understanding between nations, regulations were promulgated to facilitate the temporary admission of certain aliens who are invited to international gatherings.

Achievement of Service-wide uniformity in the interpretation and application of the laws, regulations, and related administrative policies in the rendering of decisions continued to receive major emphasis. There were 46 decisions selected for publication or published during the year as precedents. Published decisions are available for purchase from the Government Printing Office or for examination at the principal offices of the Service. Additionally, unpublished decisions have been made available for examination and copying.

Service Operations Outside the United States

Service officers stationed abroad continued to render invaluable assistance in detecting and preventing fraud, misrepresentation and other violations of law, including counterfeit document operations, alien smuggling, etc. Adjudication of various types of applications and petitions filed by U.S. citizens and aliens residing abroad was current, notwithstanding that the provisions of the Act of October 3, 1965 greatly increased the workloads of these officers.

BORDER PATROL AND INVESTIGATIONS

Deportable Aliens Located

During fiscal year 1967, Service officers located 161,608 deportable aliens. Of the total, 108,327 or 67 percent were Mexican, the number having increased by 20.7 percent from the 89,751 located in 1966. Increases in apprehensions were noted also in the number of Cuban, Canadian, and other Western Hemisphere aliens, and in the "all other" category, while decreases occurred in the balance of the nationality groups shown. The following table reflects a comparison of the violators by nationality groups for 1966 and 1967.

Nationality	Fiscal years		Percent change
	1966	1967
Mexican.....	89,751	108,327	+20.7
Cuban.....	1,061	1,251	+28.0
Canadian.....	9,089	9,199	+1.2
Dominican Republic.....	2,040	1,770	-13.2

Other Western Hemisphere.....	4,517	7,313	+61.9
Chinese.....	5,779	5,112	-11.6
Greek.....	4,279	4,063	-5.1
All others.....	19,728	22,603	+14.6
Total aliens found.....	138,520	161,608	+16.7

Status at Entry. About half (80,325) of the 161,608 violators of the immigration laws found were aliens who entered illegally and the remainder (81,283) was aliens who became deportable after violating the status for which admitted.

The illegal entries of Mexican aliens across the land borders in the Southwest accounted for 72 percent of all Mexican immigration violations, and 96.6 percent of all the surreptitious entries.

The number of Mexican adult male aliens found deportable was 94,114, an increase of 21.8 percent from the previous year. Of the total, only 68.5 percent or 64,482 were apprehended by the 10 border sectors in the Southwest region, thus indicating the increasing movement of Mexican aliens away from the border area.

Not Texas citrus grove but New York State fruit belt. Border patrolman checks migrant labor crew near Montezuma, N.Y.

The 65,902 aliens (other than crewmen) who were legally admitted and who violated their status of admission included 48,009 visitors, 4,836 students, 482 agricultural workers, 10,814 other nonimmigrants, and 1,761 immigrants. The number of violators of status increased by 3,881 or 6.3 percent over the number reported last year.

Continued emphasis was given throughout the year to effecting speedy apprehensions of the illegal aliens before they had become firmly entrenched or had obtained employment. The pressure of illegal entry and the use of various tricks and devices by aliens to evade apprehensions augmented the problem of control. Of the 150,811 aliens (other than technical crewmen violators) found in illegal status, 92,232 or 61.2 percent were located within 30 days, and 58,579 or 38.8 percent were located who had been here more than 30 days. It is significant to note that only 10,906 aliens or 7.2 percent had been here for more than 1 year before they were located.

Smuggling, Crewmen, and Stowaway Controls. Border Patrol officers located 5,671 aliens who had been induced or assisted to enter unlawfully or who had been transported unlawfully after entry.

In 1967, there were 1,155 principals or smugglers and 5,515 smuggled aliens located in the Southwest. The rapid growth of alien smuggling may be judged by the fact that there were 3½ times as many smugglers and eight times as many smuggled aliens in 1967 as there were 5 years ago.

Most of the smuggling cases involved Mexican aliens many of whom paid substantial fees for assistance in entering and for transportation to interior destinations. Sums as high as $250 reportedly were paid for the services of smugglers and transporters for passage to areas where shortages of laborers existed.

Various ruses were used for smuggling aliens into the country; many were concealed in trunks of cars and two were found under a platform covered with hay in a horse trailer. Rented trucks and trailers were used in numerous instances. In one 1½-ton truck, 46 aliens were found who had paid from $60 to $150 for assistance in entering and for transportation to various places in California. Two Canadian girls had deluxe accommodations as they rode across the border concealed inside a new automobile aboard a car-transport trailer.

The following case illustrates the extent to which some smugglers went to avoid detection. For the sum of $150 for each alien, a man and wife team transported aliens in Mexico to an isolated crossing point and instructed the aliens regarding the meeting place in the United States. The couple would then enter with documents through a port of entry and transport the aliens to a hotel in Yuma, Ariz. After purchasing railroad tickets and giving them to the individuals, the couple would leave for Indio, Calif., by auto to await the arrival of the smuggled aliens on a passenger train. The couple would then transport the group by auto to the vicinity of Coalinga, Calif.

Service investigators completed 1,042 smuggling investigations during the year. There were 551 prosecutions instituted against violators of statutes relating to smuggling, assisting or inducing aliens to enter the United States unlawfully, or transporting or harboring of unlawfully entered aliens. Of the 390 cases completed, 322 were successful resulting in aggregate sentences of 2,395 months' imprisonment and fines totaling $13,150.

A noteworthy smuggling investigation involved the Portuguese cruise liner Santa Maria, which made international news headlines in 1961 when the Portuguese rebel, Henrique Galvao, took command of the vessel in an act of piracy and held the crew and 600 passengers in custody while he sailed the South Atlantic for 12 days. On November 5, 1966, the Santa Maria arrived at Port Everglades, Fla., from Lisbon, Portugal. As a result of information previously developed by Service officers, two Portuguese natives, Joaquim Maria Ferreira and Jose Francisco Henriques, were apprehended within minutes after effecting an illegal entry from the vessel. Before complete and positive identification of the smugglers could be ascertained, the ship sailed for Lisbon.

By the time the Santa Maria returned to Port Everglades on December 9, 1966, positive identification had been made of two of the smugglers: Jose Luis, a chief steward aboard the vessel, and Joao Alves de Azevedo, a steward. The identity of the third smuggler was unknown although photographs of all the crew members had been taken by Service officers. Prior to the return of the vessel, the Federal grand jury at Miami, Fla., returned a two-count indictment of violation of title 8, United States Code, section 1324 against Luis and Azevedo. Service officers boarded the vessel upon its arrival on December 9; the identity of the third (crewman) smuggler was established from the photographs as being a steward named Joaquim de Oliveria Varandas and all three (crewmen) smugglers were arrested and remanded to the custody of the U.S. marshal. Service investigation revealed that arrangements had been made in Portugal to smuggle the two aliens into the United

Check being made at railroad yards in Detroit. Patrol officers have found illegal aliens hidden in automobiles being transported into the United States

States for a fee of $700 each. On October 21, 1966, the aliens were taken aboard the Santa Maria in Lisbon and concealed in a storage room. During the 15 days aboard the vessel, they were fed by the three smugglers and upon arrival at Port Everglades, were furnished landing passes to permit them to disembark. On January 13, 1967, a Federal jury in Miami, Fla., returned a verdict of guilty on two counts against Luis and guilty on one count against Azevedo and Varandas. All three were sentenced to terms in a Federal penitentiary. As a result of information obtained during this investigation, two other Portuguese citizens, who had effected entry as stowaways, were later apprehended at Hudson, Mass.

The number of alien crewmen found deportable on technical grounds when their ships remained in port beyond the 29-day statutory limit reflected a slight decline with 10,797 such violators encountered this year compared with 11,347 located last fiscal year.

The continuing close attention given to crewman control and antistowaway and smuggling programs resulted in the quick location of 4,461 crewmen who had deserted their vessels, and 205 stowaways who were landed or found unreported on board vessels. Service policy of close liaison and cooperation with law enforcement agencies and other persons greatly contributed to the successful control of crewmen. The following is a typical case.

On January 9, 1967, the Baltimore office received information that five Chinese crewmen were deserting their vessel and were destined to New York City by public transportation. Investigators were dispatched immediately to check transportation terminals. When the five Chinese were located and interviewed, it was established that they were crewmen from a vessel which was scheduled to sail foreign from Baltimore later that day. All the crewmen were dressed in two or three pairs of pants, shirts, and other miscellaneous clothing. They were without baggage, but had with them various articles, such as shaving gear, toothbrushes, and the like. They did not have permission from the captain to proceed to New York and would have been unable to sail with the vessel had they gone to that city. They finally admitted they intended to desert the ship. Their landing permits were revoked, and they were returned to the vessel and ordered deported.

As in every year since the 1958 opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, Border Patrol efforts to prevent desertions from ships traversing the U.S. section of the waterway were completely successful. During fiscal year 1967, Border Patrol officers checked 296 departing ships and verified departure from the United States of 813 crewmen who had been ordered detained on board. There were no reported desertions. This excellent control is all the more remarkable when considered in the light of the high rate of crewman desertions at Canadian ports. Canadian authorities reported 465 desertions in eastern Canada during fiscal year 1967, including 285 at the port of Montreal, less than 100 miles from the U.S. section of the seaway. An important development which emphasized the desirability and need for good crewman control in the seaway was the sharp increase in Iron Curtain vessels passing through the locks. It was considered dramatic news, only a little more than 2 years ago, when the first Soviet ship traversed the U.S. portion of the seaway. Today, passage of Soviet bloc ships through the system has become commonplace.

Air Operations. The Service continued to use observation aircraft in its enforcement work with increasing effectiveness. In the Southwest region, 21 light aircraft were used primarily to prevent entry and to locate aliens attempting illegal entry. In each sector along the Mexican border, these aircraft, in tracking operations with ground teams, begin at dawn each day searching for aliens attempting illegal entry. Officer pilots of these aircraft performed in excess of 26,000 flight-hours and assisted in locating 8,599 deportable aliens, exceeding the 1966 figure by 584. Although the contribution of observation aircraft to the prevention of illegal entry cannot be measured statistically, they have effectively discouraged illegal entry during daylight hours permitting the assignment of more patrol officers to the critical hours of darkness.

During the year, transport aircraft logged 5,670 flight-hours and 29,665,738 passenger-miles without incident. Of the total, 26,705,536 passenger-miles accrued in transporting aliens from all parts of the United States to and between staging areas on the Mexican border. In addition, 2,960,062 passenger-miles were logged in conveying prisoners for the Bureau of Prisons. The total number of passenger-miles flown increased 34 percent over the last fiscal year. Greater use was made of the Leon airlift and Presidio-Ojinaga trainlift in order to remove more illegal Mexican adult male aliens to the interior of Mexico. During the year, 12,840 aliens were airlifted to Leon, Guanajuato, Mexico. The regular Matamoras-Leon flights were supplemented by flights conveying 4,620 aliens from Mexicali to Leon and 780 from Juarez to Leon. The number removed by means of the Presidio-Ojinaga trainlift to Chihuahua City, Chihuahua, Mexico, increased approximately 50 percent, from 34,583 in fiscal year 1966 to 51,781 in 1967.

The effectiveness of these programs is demonstrated by the fact that during fiscal year 1967 only 8,812 or 5.5 percent of the previously buslifted and trainlifted aliens and 3,238 or 3.4 percent of the aliens airlifted had returned illegally and had been apprehended again.

Cooperation With Other Law Enforcement Agencies. Continued emphasis was given throughout the year to liaison and mutual cooperation with other law enforcement agencies. Many top field supervisors are regularly invited as instructors to various police schools throughout the country to acquaint the fledgling police officers with our operations and the type of violators in which the Service has an interest. In many areas, these occasions constituted the very first contact for many of these young officers with the Service. It is felt that the relationships thus established will be lasting and mutually valuable to the agencies concerned. In addition, Border Patrol officers and investigators represented the Service at regular meetings of organizations whose membership included officers of city, county, State, and Federal law enforcement agencies and various foreign enforcement agencies in Canada and Mexico. The productive hours expended in liaison have been very fruitful and therefore such liaison is a necessary component of our operations.

The success of this program is readily apparent from the statistics. Last year, other law enforcement agencies delivered to Border Patrol officers 8,438 violators of the Immigration and Nationality Act, representing 22 percent more than the 6,900 violators referred to our officers in fiscal year 1966. Border Patrol officers, incident to performing their duties, arrested and released to appropriate law enforcement agencies 742 violators of other laws including 67 narcotic violators. Coincidental to the apprehension of such violators, our officers seized and recovered merchandise, narcotics, and property having a total value of $1,988,569.

In the light of the foregoing, it is evident that there has been a significant increase in the smuggling of marijuana across the Mexican border into the United States, particularly into the States of California and Arizona.

The facts of a few of the largest and most noteworthy seizures made and other typical cases highlighting mutual cooperation between Service officers and other law enforcement agencies are summarized below.

Border Patrol officers in search of illegal aliens at a check point on Highway No. 111, north of Niland, Calif., stopped a truck and questioned the driver. They quickly observed that the space between the truck frame and immediately below the bed was completely enclosed and gave the appearance of a double compartment. Further investigation disclosed 462 pounds of marijuana concealed in this compartment. The officers arrested the smuggler, seized the marijuana and vehicle, and delivered the violator and contraband to the Customs Service.

During August and December 1966, officers at Campo, Calif., arrested eight U.S. citizens with 380 pounds of marijuana, 640 assorted dangerous drug capsules, and six capsules of heroin. These and numerous other similar cases, brought the value of narcotics seized to $1,718,937, or 4½ times the value of seizures in 1966.

On May 22, 1967, the Zapata County, Texas sheriff requested assistance of the Border Patrol in the apprehension of an illegal Mexican alien who was wanted for murder. Patrol inspectors located the suspect hiding in one of three small buildings located on a ranch about 7 miles from where the murder was committed. The suspect was not armed at the time, but admitted the murder and showed the officers the weapon, a 12-gauge shotgun, located in another building along with other high powered rifles.

In a bus station, New Orleans patrol inspectors on March 21, 1967, encountered a U.S. citizen armed with a .38-caliber revolver who was threatening to kill his wife. The subject was arrested and turned over to the city police. On a subsequent occasion, two New Orleans patrol inspectors on a bus-checking assignment saw an armed man in the act of picking the pockets of another person. The patrol inspectors arrested and disarmed the subject and detained him for the city police.

An interesting and significant case reflecting assistance to the Border Patrol by other law enforcement agencies involves the arrest of two professional smugglers who were caught in the act of transporting illegal Mexican aliens into the United States. A fish and game warden and an employee of the State forestry service were patrolling a canyon road in search of lawbreaking spot-lighters. The officers, noting signs of fresh car tracks, soon overtook and stopped a slow-traveling panel truck. Instead of game law violations, the officers found 21 illegal Mexican aliens in the truck.

Within 12 hours after receiving a folder, compiled by this Service and Canadian police that contained photographs and biographical background of Latin American criminals, the Metropolitan Police Department of Washington, D.C., apprehended two South American aliens on the basis of this information. These men were operating a confidence game known as "three card monte." One of the aliens, Juan Jose Caicedo-Paredes, had been previously deported from the United States and had reentered with fraudulent documents.

During August 1966, an illegal alien was apprehended who had been bitten earlier by a rattlesnake. Only the action of the patrol inspector, who secured prompt medical aid, prevented probable amputation of the injured leg or the loss of the alien's life.

Encounters With Armed Law Violators and Aliens Apprehended With Prior Records of Criminal and Immigration Law Violations. Not since the early days of the wetback era in the early 1950's have Service officers met with so much harassment and physical resistance in administering the immigration and nationality laws and in bringing law violators to justice. The defiance has ranged from verbal threats and assaults to physical violence culminating in death as in the cases of the two officers who were recently murdered. During the year, 46,743 aliens with prior violations of the immigration laws and of these more than 3,500 with prior criminal records were taken into custody. Among those arrested, were 58 persons in possession of weapons including 32 pistols, five rifles, two shotguns, and 13 knives.

A few typical cases wherein our officers were forcibly resisted while in the performance of their official duty are enumerated below.

The most tragic of these encounters occurred during the early morning hours of June 17, 1967, when Patrol Inspectors Theodore L. Newton, Jr., and George F. Azrak, while performing traffic check in search of illegal aliens on Highway No. 79 near Oak Grove, Calif., were overpowered, taken to a cabin in a remote area, handcuffed, and then murdered. Their murders touched off a national and international manhunt by the FBI for four suspects who have since been apprehended, arraigned, and are now awaiting trial.

With the deaths of these two officers, the Service has lost 57 officers killed in the performance of duty since 1919. Of the total, 31 have been killed by assaults. During the current year another officer, Richard A. Lugo, was killed in line of duty on May 14, 1967, when his jeep overturned on a levee while assigned to sign-cutting operations.

In another case, a patrol inspector, while performing farm and ranch check in search of illegal aliens near Modesto, Calif., was threatened by a farmer who pulled a shotgun from his pickup truck and swung it around into position in line with the officer. The officer acting quickly in self-defense grabbed the shotgun, pulled his revolver, fired, and wounded the attacker in the shoulder, forcing him to release his shotgun. The farmer was tried in Federal court, pled guilty, and was fined.

At El Paso, Tex., on July 6, 1966, a patrol inspector in a tower observed three Mexican male aliens carrying bundles from the levee on the American side to the edge of the river and then saw them passing additional bundles over the backyard fence of a residence. Mobile units were notified by radio. Two of the men fled to Mexico, one was intercepted. The alien struggled with the officer in an attempt to get the officer's gun. The alien had burglarized the residence and records indicate that he had been arrested by the Service for illegal entry on August 21 and November 15, 1960. The El Paso Police Department had previously arrested him as a burglary suspect on May 4, 1962, and again on April 29, 1965. The subject was returned to Mexico after each arrest.

Two patrol inspectors at Chula Vista, Calif., while performing line watch duties on the night of April 23, 1967, observed seven subjects climbing over the International fence in what appeared to be a smuggling operation. Upon entry the group separated and ran with patrol inspectors in pursuit. Two of the subjects returned to Mexico and one of the two fired six shots at the officers. The shooting attracted other Mexican citizens who approached the boundary fence and commenced throwing stones at the officers.

Caribbean Program

The Service Caribbean Investigations Coordination Program and the relating index maintained at Miami continued as effective measures in assisting to prevent the entry into the United States of Latin American aliens of the criminal, immoral, narcotic, and subversive classes. In addition to their importance to Service operations, they have proved valuable to other Government agencies engaged in investigations involving the security of the United States. The index was augmented by approximately 10,000 reference cards during fiscal year 1967 and includes numerous references to individuals alleged or suspected of being agents of Cuba or other Caribbean and Latin American countries.

During fiscal year 1967, there were in excess of 180,000 checks made of the index resulting in the location of over 11,000 relating records. Primarily on the basis of information contained in the index, over 180 antisubversive investigations were initiated by the Service. These investigations involved some aliens currently in the United States, some attempting to enter the country illegally, and some applying for admission as permanent residents or as refugees on the Cuban airlift. There were 695 investigations of Cubans completed during the year, 180 of whom were alleged to be of the subversive class and 89 allegedly of the criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes.

An example of one of the types of cases handled under the program is that of Engenio Luis Vergara de la Guardia, an alleged Cuban Communist and employee of a Cuban Communist Party newspaper, who was ordered excluded and deported at a hearing accorded December 8, 1966.

Other case examples are those of Cubans Alberto Enrique Castineira-Lopez de la Torre and Juan Miguel Haedo-Medina, both of whom were refused permission to enter the United States on the basis of security information contained in the index.

Foreign-Born Law Violators

Internal Security and the Foreign Born. The Service Antisubversive Program is designed to identify foreign-born subversives and develop evidence upon which to institute exclusion or expulsion proceedings, and to deny, where warranted, benefits under the U.S. immigration and nationality laws. A close liaison was maintained with other Government agencies concerned in security matters, and information developed was promptly furnished to the appropriate agency or agencies.

A continuing effort was made to identify and compile evidence concerning various groups or organizations to determine whether their characterization as subversive organizations was warranted and, if so, whether involvement in those organizations by the foreign born justified Service action looking toward their exclusion or deportation from the United States, or in the case of naturalized citizens, the revocation of their citizenship. Investigations were conducted to identify certain aliens involved in demonstrations protesting the national effort in Vietnam and elsewhere, and determine their amenability to Service proceedings.

The Canadian and Mexican Border Antisubversive Programs also served effectively as means of excluding from the United States aliens whose admission would adversely affect the security of this country. Under the Canadian Border Antisubversive Program, 64 Service lookouts were posted and six aliens applying for admission were rejected at the border on the basis of information developed. Under the Mexican Border Antisubversive Program, there were 347 investigations completed on applicants or potential applicants for admission. Service lookouts were posted against 246 of the aliens involved, 31 such aliens were rejected at the border, and 14 permanent exclusion orders were issued. A total of 3,630 investigations was completed on aliens or naturalized citizens alleged to be of the subversive classes.

Listed below are examples of the types of cases handled under the Service Antisubversive Program.

Filippo Tornabene, native and citizen of Italy, was admitted to the United States as a temporary visitor on August 22, 1966. His application for adjustment of status to that of a permanent resident was denied on the basis of information received subsequent to his entry that he was a member of the Communist Party of Italy. Despite his denial of the charges, further investigation confirmed his Communist Party membership and he was required to depart from the United States.

Miroslav Petrovic, a native and citizen of Yugoslavia, was apprehended on May 28, 1967, and following a hearing, was required to depart from the United States under safeguards. Petrovic was alleged to have been involved in the bombings of Yugoslav consulates in the United States and Canada.

Zweledinga Pallo Jordan, born at Kroonstad, Orange Free State, United Kingdom, was admitted to the United States as a student on September 16, 1963, and thereafter became active in suspected subversive organizations and in demonstrations opposing United States intervention in Vietnam. His application for adjustment of status to that of a permanent resident was denied and he was required to depart from the United States on February 26, 1967.

Foreign Born of the Criminal Classes. There were 8,375 investigations involving aliens of the criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes completed during the year. Included were 89 revocation cases, 3,185 deportation cases, 3,952 applicants for admission, and 1,149 naturalization cases. Applications for orders to show cause in deportation proceedings were made in 730 of the cases investigated and 503 aliens of the criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes were deported from the United States. Prosecutions for nationality violations numbered 366 cases instituted, 331 were acted upon, and there were 316 convictions.

Nicola Femia, an Italian citizen, managed to conceal a conviction for homicide in Italy and obtained a nonimmigrant visa to visit the United States. Three months after his arrival, he was denied an extension of stay and was requested to depart from the United States. He failed to depart and quickly disappeared. In the meantime, the concealment of his homicide conviction was discovered. He was found working in Greenwich, Conn., by Service investigators on July 13, 1966, and was deported to Italy on July 27, 1966.

Angelica Pellecer-Arandi and her son, Hector Rene Galan-Pellecer, were admitted to the United States at Houston, Tex., as temporary visitors. Through the International Criminal Police Organization, it was learned they were wanted by Guatemalan police for defrauding the Guatemalan Government of $220,000 in a lottery fraud operation. Despite extensive efforts made by these individuals to elude Service officers and disguise their identities, they were located at New Orleans, La., on May 13, 1966, as they were preparing to depart from the city. On July 8, 1966, they were deported from the United States to Guatemala following notification to Guatemalan officials.

Robert Gaetano Esposito was first deported from the United States for criminal activity in 1956. He subsequently obtained a fraudulent Italian passport under an assumed name and while allegedly in transit through the United States to Panama on September 28, 1959, absconded and remained illegally in the country. He continued his criminal activities under his assumed identity and on September 21, 1960, he was sentenced to 9 years' imprisonment for interstate transportation of forged securities. His true identity came to light during his arrest on this charge and following his discharge from the U.S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., he was deported to Italy on November 15, 1966.

During the year, liaison between Service officers and other law enforcement officers on programs designed to identify and control alien criminals attempting to cross the international borders was improved and strengthened. In particular, the Service cooperated with the newly formed Canadian Immigration Investigations Unit in supplying information on criminals involved in organized criminal activities. With the advent of Expo 67, valuable information was supplied to the Canadian officers concerning the activities of alien professional pickpockets and shoplifters who have operated from bases in Latin America. The following cases provide examples of investigative accomplishment in the field of border program activity.

John Augustine Coughlin, a Canadian criminal who was previously convicted of perjury and armed robbery was arrested in Los Angeles, Calif., for drunk driving and turned over to Service investigators. During the course of the investigation he was found to have been previously deported from the United States and among his effects were located an automatic pistol, a large amount of cash, and newspaper clippings describing a bank robbery in Seattle, Wash., on October 28, 1966. A description of the bank robber as contained in the clippings fitted Coughlin, and he admitted the robbery. The FBI was promptly notified. In the meantime, Coughlin was sentenced to 2 years for violation of 8 U.S.C. 1326 (illegal reentry following deportation) on December 5, 1966, and he is serving his sentence at McNeil Island Penitentiary in Washington.

Jerry Fernand Monahan, a resident of Canada, and Michael Frederick Abbott, a Canadian citizen, fled from Canada to Florida to escape arrest for robbery and shooting of a Toronto resident. Upon request of the Toronto police relayed through the FBI, investigation was instituted and both individuals were located and apprehended by Service investigators in North Miami Beach, Fla., on March 3, 1967, when they were observed in a car owned by Abbott. Abbott was returned to the custody of Toronto police from Florida on March 8, 1967. Monahan was previously deported from the United States on September 29, 1966. On March 17, 1967, he was convicted for violation of 8 U.S.C. 1326 (illegal reentry following deportation). Following the serving of a sentence of 90 days, he was deported to Canada on June 6, 1967, and turned over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Border criminal identification activity during the year resulted in the posting of 3,280 lookouts designed to prevent the admission to the United States of aliens of the criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes. As a result of the lookouts, 1,066 aliens of these classes were rejected or excluded from the United States during the year.

Latin American pickpockets and shoplifters continued to operate throughout the country during the year and special emphasis was placed upon their prosecution for immigration law violations to prevent their speedy reentry under false identities. The problem presented by these criminals was compounded during the year by the discovery of counterfeit nonimmigrant visas emanating from Colombia. Investigation of these frauds and counterfeits is being coordinated through the Department of State with authorities in Colombia.

Frauds. Investigations completed during the last year which involved possible fraudulent activities in attempts to circumvent the immigration laws numbered 4,728. Many of the investigations resulted in the criminal prosecution of those involved in conspiracies in the preparation and use of fraudulent documents necessary to support the issuance of an immigrant visa.

These investigations disclosed a continuing pattern of use of altered or fraudulent passports and immigration documents and "sham" marriages to U.S. citizens to circumvent quota restrictions. Examples of the success of these complex investigations follow.

Since the recent amendment of the immigration law requiring Department of Labor certification of immigrants, several new types of frauds have developed. Many aliens who are ineligible for labor certifications obtain immigrant visas by means of certifications secured through connivance and misrepresentations. The most recent pattern involves aliens who have secured certifications as live-in domestics, although this is not their principal occupation. Upon arrival in the United States, the alien either fails to appear for the contracted employment or remains in such employment a very short time. When fraud or conspiracy to commit fraud is established, these cases are presented to the U.S. attorneys for consideration of prosecution, after which deportation proceedings are instituted. Numerous cases involve immigrants who have entered into "sham" marriages with U.S. citizens to achieve immediate relative status and circumvent labor certification requirements. These cases usually involve an "arranger" such as Lino R. Salazar, a resident of Los Angeles, Calif., who pleaded guilty November 10, 1966, to two counts of a nine-count indictment charging him with arranging "sham" marriages between Mexican aliens and U.S. citizens to evade labor certification requirements. Salazar, for fees up to $800, provided the U.S.-citizen spouses and prepared all of the fraudulent documentation necessary to secure immigrant visas. When he failed to appear for sentencing December 15, 1966, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. He is still a fugitive. Other cases involve the filing of false birth records in the United States of children actually born abroad. This false registration enables the parents, when applying for immigrant visas, to claim immediate relative status and thus evade the labor certification requirements. Investigation of this scheme has thus far identified three Texas midwives, who falsely registered births in the United States of some 47 children who were actually born in Mexico. In all cases the parents intended to use the false Texas birth certificates to avoid getting labor certifications in connection with applications for immigrant visas.

After trial in the U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York, Ethelbert Bernard, a naturalized U.S. citizen, and Adria Foote, a native and citizen of Jamaica, were found guilty on nine counts of a 12-count indictment charging them with arranging "sham" marriages between Trinidad nationals and U.S. citizens to evade quota restrictions. The male aliens paid fees up to $400 from which the citizen spouses received $200. On May 26, 1967, the defendants were sentenced to serve 4 months and 6 months, respectively, and placed on probation for 2 years. Deportation proceedings have been instituted against Foote, who had been admitted to the United States as a temporary visitor.

Raymond Rudolph Garcia, a San Diego public relations man and former announcer at the Jai Alai games in Tijuana, B.C., Mexico, pleaded guilty to one count of an indictment charging him with preparing and furnishing fraudulent employment assurances to Mexican applicants for immigrant visas. On May 15, 1967, he was fined $250 and placed on probation for 5 years.

During the last year, certain individuals in the Dominican Republic continued to furnish Dominican nationals with altered Dominican passports and/or U.S. nonimmigrant visas. The most common alterations involved photograph substitution or actual alterations of nonimmigrant visas. The price of the altered documents varied from $25 to $300. The cases of the aliens located were presented to the appropriate U.S. attorneys for consideration of prosecution, after which their departures were effected. Close liaison has been maintained with the Department of State both on a local and seat of government level.

Again this year, the workload at the Fraudulent Document Center exceeded all other years since the facility was established in 1958. An average of 200 cases was received and indexed each month bringing the overall total of cases on file to 15,117 by the end of the year. The number of new cases added to the files was 24 percent more than in the previous year. Inquiries for record checks increased by 8 percent, from 2,401 to 2,593. Positive responses to inquiries rose 29 percent, from 373 to 482. The percentage of positive responses furnished in relation to the number of inquiries received, 18.6 percent, was the highest ever recorded.

The number of false claims to citizenship encountered by the Patrol increased for the sixth consecutive year. The 1,688 cases accounted for in the current period was 22 percent above the 1,385 cases reported the year before. False claims were made by 1,657 Mexicans, 24 Canadians, and seven aliens of other nationalities. In the past 6 years the volume of false claims has more than doubled.

The detection of a false claim to citizenship sometimes leads to the source of documents that appear to be genuine but are not. In a case developed in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, a false claimant presented a baptismal certificate bearing his true name and correct birth date. Inquiry into the matter revealed that two churches in the area were using forms on which the seals and facsimile signatures were placed in advance to expedite issuance of copies of church records. On several occasions applicants have requested copies of baptismal records that did not exist, thereby causing the church employee to spend extra time searching the records. This afforded ample time for theft of blank forms lying within reach of the applicants. The facts indicated an organized group was stealing the blank forms and selling them in Mexico where vendors executed the forms in the true name, etc., of a prospective false claimant. As a result of the disclosures, security measures were instituted to safeguard the forms.

Criminal Prosecution

U.S. attorneys authorized prosecutions for violations of the immigration and nationality laws in 3,577 cases. Of the cases disposed of, 93 percent resulted in convictions with aggregate sentences of 36,563 months and fines of $87,625.

Of the aliens convicted, 1,619 were convicted of reentry after deportation without permission (8 U.S.C. 1326); 509 persons were convicted for document fraud (18 U.S.C. 1546); and the average sentence in these cases was 13 months. Of the 316 persons convicted for nationality violations, 315 convictions were for false representations as a U.S. citizen (18 U.S.C. 911).

DETENTION AND DEPORTATION ACTIVITIES

The number of aliens deported in fiscal year 1967 under orders of deportation was 9,260, about 100 more than the 9,168 deported in fiscal year 1966. Among those deported were 503 on criminal, immoral, and narcotic charges.

Among the criminals deported was Georges Le May, who was wanted in Canada on charges of masterminding the robbery of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Montreal in 1961. In May 1965, his photograph was shown on an Early Bird Satellite telecast as the "Most Wanted Man" on the Royal Canadian Mounted Police list of wanted criminals. The photograph was recognized by a resident of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as that of a man living on a boat in a marina. As a result, Le May was taken into custody by officers of this Service on May 6, 1965, and deportation proceedings were instituted. While the proceedings were pending, he escaped from the Dade County Jail, Miami, Fla., in September 1965. He was arrested by the FBI in Las Vegas, Nev., in August 1966. Subsequently, he was turned over to this Service and was deported to Canada in October 1966. A criminal wanted by the police in Italy was also deported. Angelo Di Stefano, who had been convicted in France for fraud in 1962 and was wanted in Italy for fraud, false pretenses, and forgery was apprehended in Detroit and subsequently deported to Italy in 1967.

Of the aliens deported, 90 percent or 8,345 had entered without inspection or without proper documents or failed to maintain their nonimmigrant status. There were 5,423 deportations to Mexico, 938 to Canada, 657 to Greece, 143 to Spain, 140 to the Dominican Republic, 91 to Germany, 91 to Great Britain, and 82 to Italy.

The number of aliens required to depart without issuance of formal orders of deportation increased from 123,683 in the last fiscal year to 142,343. Among them were 11,559 crewmen who were technical violators who remained longer than the time for which admitted, and 91,298 others, most of whom had entered without inspection and who departed under safeguards. Comparable figures for 1966 were 10,328 crewmen and 73,845 others, respectively.

The remainder, 39,486, departed after the issuance of orders to show cause. Included were 72 in the criminal, immoral, and narcotics classes, 82 who had been previously excluded or deported, 29,301 who failed to maintain or violated the status under which they were admitted, and 7,592 who entered without inspection. The principal countries of destination of these aliens were Mexico, 17,698; Canada, 6,205; Jamaica, 2,203; the Dominican Republic, 1,547; the Philippines, 1,063; Greece, 609; Italy, 575; Great Britain, 554; and Japan, 444.

At their own request, 106 aliens who had fallen into distress were removed from the United States under Section 250 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Thirty-eight mentally incompetent aliens were deported or removed. Up to the time of deportation, approximately $201,666 had been expended for their care in the United States. If they had continued to remain institutionalized at public expense, over $3,139,531 would have been disbursed for their maintenance and treatment during their expected lifetimes.

There were 37,621 aliens initially admitted to Service detention facilities and 56,427 to non-Service facilities.

HEARINGS AND LITIGATION

Exclusion and Deportation Hearings

The fiscal year total of deportation hearings referred to Special Inquiry Officers increased from the previous year to 19,214, representing the second highest total on record for any single year. During this fiscal year, the New York district accounted for 31 percent of the country's total. Exclusion hearings referred to Special Inquiry Officers totaled 895, representing an increase over the total received in 1966.

The impact of the Act of October 3, 1965, continued to make itself felt; during fiscal year 1967, application for withholding of deportation on the basis of a claim of persecution totaled 398, a 32-percent increase as compared with 1966. To the list of countries concerning which such claims were made in previous years, there were added during 1967, Nigeria and Lebanon. During fiscal year 1967, 542 cases were referred to Congress for approval of orders granting suspension of deportation.

This fiscal year brought to the forefront added problems in the determination by Special Inquiry Officers of deportation and exclusion cases, resulting from two far-reaching and noteworthy decisions of the Supreme Court. In Woodby v. INS, 385 U.S. 276, the Supreme Court concluded that in deportation proceedings it was incumbent upon the Government in such proceedings to establish the facts supporting deportability by clear, unequivocal, and convincing evidence. An increased number of claims are being made on behalf of respondents in deportation proceedings that this new burden of proof upon the Government has not been met, and it may reasonably be assumed that such contentions will continue to be made in the future, regardless of the soundness of that claim, until a broad body of case law has been established interpreting the scope of this decision in respect to its application to deportation proceedings. Special Inquiry Officers consequently are faced with the duty of being the initial decisionmaking agency in creating the necessary precedents, to the extent that such precedents can in fact be created.

Litigation

As chief law officer, the General Counsel functions principally as adviser to the Commissioner and operating officials on legal matters in carrying out Service enforcement and administrative duties under the immigration and nationality statutes. He provides executive and professional direction to four regional counsels, who maintain professional supervision over trial attorneys whose primary responsibility is to represent the Service in formal exclusion, expulsion, and rescission hearings before Special Inquiry Officers. Trial attorneys, when requested, assist U.S. attorneys in civil and criminal actions arising out of the immigration and nationality laws. The General Counsel, through two appellate trial attorneys represents the Service before the Board of Immigration Appeals in all appellate matters.

During fiscal year 1967, the trial attorneys reviewed 12,905 applications for orders to show cause in deportation proceedings and prepared for hearing 14,653 deportation cases. They participated in 2,635 cases involving the issue of deportability and 4,790 deportation cases where the issue was the grant or denial of administrative relief from deportability. They also prepared 2,043 legal briefs and memorandums, and entered appearances in 503 exclusion cases.

The Board of Immigration Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals in exclusion, expulsion, rescission of adjustment of status, and visa petition cases. During the fiscal year, the Board rendered 2,326 decisions in appellate matters which decisions were reviewed by the appellate trial attorneys to determine whether any conflicted with Service policies or interpretation of the law. In the event of possible conflict, the decision is referred to the General Counsel for consideration as to whether a motion to reopen or reconsider should be submitted to the Board or whether recommendation should be made to the Commissioner that the case be certified to the Attorney General. In fiscal year 1967, the appellate trial attorneys argued 323 cases before the Board and submitted to the Board 24 briefs and 26 motions to reopen or reconsider.

There was a marked increase during fiscal year 1967 in court litigation challenging administrative decisions in immigration and nationality matters. A total of 813 actions were filed compared with 200 the previous year. There were filed in the district courts of the United States 63 petitions for writ of habeas corpus and 325 declaratory judgment actions. The district courts decided 52 writ of habeas corpus cases favorably to the Government; two decisions were adverse. In the declaratory judgment actions the Government received 325 favorable and no unfavorable decisions. In U.S. courts of appeals, 325 direct petitions for review of deportation cases were filed under Section 106 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended, 8 U.S.C. 1105a. Of the petitions for review decided by the courts of appeals, 159 were favorable to the Government and five adverse. The Supreme Court denied 15 petitions for certiorari in immigration and nationality cases and granted two.

During the past fiscal year, the Service witnessed several important decisions in the field of the Immigration and Nationality Law. Section 241(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1251(f), provides that certain alien relatives of U.S. citizens or permanent resident aliens who procured immigration documents or entry into the United States by fraud or misrepresentation are nondeportable if they were otherwise admissible at time of entry. This statute was construed by the Supreme Court in INS v. Errico, 385 U.S. 214 (1966), and the term "otherwise admissible" was found not to refer to inadmissibility because of evasion of quota restrictions of the immigration law. The Errico decision also required a review of all pending deportation cases to determine whether any required administrative reconsideration in the light of the Supreme Court's holding was necessary. Moreover, the Service has been confronted with a number of difficult problems in attempting to assess the impact of Errico in various contexts. These problems are currently in the process of administrative and judicial determination.

In Berenyi v. District Director, 385 U.S. 630 (1967), the Supreme Court denied naturalization to Berenyi for falsely testifying that he had not been a member of or associated with the Hungarian Communist Party. In so ruling, the Supreme Court reaffirmed its declaration in United States v. Macintosh, 283 U.S. 605 (1931), that in a naturalization proceeding doubts should be resolved in favor of the United States and against the petitioner.

The question before the Supreme Court in Boutillier v. INS, 387 U.S. 118 (1967), was whether Congress in directing the exclusion of aliens afflicted with psychopathic personality intended to bar homosexuals such as the petitioner Boutillier and whether this exclusion statute was void for vagueness. The Court concluded that the legislative history of the statute left no doubt that Congress intended to exclude homosexuals and that this statute was not constitutionally defective because its sanction was not imposed on postentry conduct.

In Afroyim v. Rusk, 387 U.S. 253 (1967), the Supreme Court struck down as unconstitutional a statute declaring that a U.S. citizen is expatriated by voting in a foreign political election and expressly overruled Perez v. Brownell, 356 U.S. 44 (1958), which had held the same statute constitutional as a reasonable implementation of the implied power to conduct foreign affairs. The Court in Afroyim found the statute in conflict with the 14th amendment which it construed as protecting every citizen against a congressional destruction of his citizenship. The Court said that loss of citizenship may only result from a voluntary relinquishment, and its sweeping language casts doubt on the validity of other expatriation statutes.

The Supreme Court by denial of certiorari declined to review the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in DeLucia v. INS, 370 F. 2d 305 (1967), cert. den. 386 U.S. 912. DeLucia is a native of Italy who is nicknamed "Paul the Waiter" and has been characterized by the press as a top racketeer in the Chicago area. He entered the United States in 1920 and was naturalized in 1928. His certificate of naturalization was canceled in 1957 because he was found to have concealed material facts from the naturalization court. After a hearing, he was ordered deported on the grounds that he had no passport at the time of entry and that prior to entry he had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. The validity of the deportation order was upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, DeLucia v. Flagg, 297 F. 2d 58 (1962), cert. den. 369 U.S. 837.

Thereafter the deportation hearing was reopened to permit DeLucia to make applications for discretionary relief from deportation. After a protracted hearing his applications were denied by a Special Inquiry Officer and by the Board of Immigration Appeals. He challenged this denial by a petition to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit which resulted in a decision adverse to him, and the Supreme Court refused to review as above stated. After denial of certiorari by the Supreme Court, DeLucia commenced an action in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia to enjoin the Service from representing that he is an Italian national. The District Court dismissed this action and DeLucia now has an appeal pending in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from the judgment of the District Court.

The Supreme Court also denied certiorari and refused to review the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Tai Mui v. Esperdy, 371 F. 2d 772 (1966), cert. den. 386 U.S. 1017. This involved four Chinese crewmen illegally in the United States who commenced actions in the Southern District of New York seeking stays of deportation to enable them to become permanent residents of the United States under the provisions of Section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended, 8 U.S.C. 1153(a)(7), authorizing permanent resident status for certain refugees. Since numerous other cases involving the same issues had been filed in the Southern District of New York, Tai Mui and the three other cases were designated as pilot cases and counsel for the Government and the aliens in the other actions stipulated to be bound by the decision in the pilot cases.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in affirming the District Court ruling in favor of the Government, found no merit in appellants' argument that the Service regulations should authorize the issuance of conditional entries to refugees in the United States and in the Orient. The court also agreed with the interpretation of the Service that the phrase "adjustment of status" in Section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1153(a)(7), means adjustment under Section 245 of the same Act, 8 U.S.C. 1255, whose benefits are unavailable to alien crewmen like appellants. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in Lee v. INS, 375 F. 2d 723 (1967), held that the phrase "adjustment of status" in Section 203(a) (7) did not define a new method of adjustment but found it unnecessary to determine whether Section 245 is the exclusive method of adjustment of status of refugees under Section 203(a) (7). Review of this decision is sought by a petition for certiorari filed June 22, 1967, N. 281, Oct. 1967 Term.

Conflict continues as to the scope of review of deportation cases by U.S. courts of appeals by direct petitions under Section 106 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1105a. In Foti v. INS, 375 U.S. 217 (1963), the Supreme Court liberally interpreted Section 106 by not limiting courts of appeals to review of the determination of deportability but extended review to ancillary orders entered in the deportation hearing, relating to the designation of the place of deportation and the denial of applications for discretionary relief such as suspension of deportation, voluntary departure, adjustment of status, registry, and the withholding of deportation because of persecution for race, religion, or political opinion in the proposed country of deportation. In a subsequent decision in Giosa v. Rosenberg, 379 U.S. 18 (1964), the Supreme Court extended Section 106 review to denial of a motion to reopen a deportation case.

A divergence of opinion exists as to the jurisdiction of the U.S. courts of appeals to review under Section 106 determinations made outside the deportation proceeding which could delay or nullify the deportation order, such as decisions on visa petitions, applications for refugee classification, applications by exchange visitors for waiver of the foreign residence requirement and applications to District Directors for stay of deportation. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit gave an expansive construction to Section 106 and reviewed a denial of a visa petition in Skiftos v. INS, 332 F. 2d 203 (1964), and the denial of a stay of deportation by a District Director in Melone v. INS, 355 F. 2d 533 (1966). Of a similar view is the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit which reviewed the denial of a waiver of the foreign residence requirement of an exchange visitor in Talarera v. Peterson, 334 F. 2d 52 (1964). The position of the Fifth Circuit is unclear. In Samala v. INS, 336 F. 2d 7 (1964), it held that a district court and not a court of appeals had jurisdiction to review the denial of a waiver of an exchange visitor's foreign residence requirement, but this case was decided before the decision of the Supreme Court in Foti.

Other courts have taken a more restrictive approach and limited their jurisdiction to review only determinations made in the deportation hearing. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Tai Mui, supra, held it had no jurisdiction to review under Section 106 a denial by a District Director of an application for stay of deportation and an application for refugee status. However, in the later case of Li Cheung et al. v.

Esperdy, 377 F. 2d 819 (C.A. 2, 1967), which involved several petitions of Chinese crewmen to review the denial of stays of deportation by a District Director, the Second Circuit, while not overruling Tai Mui, did pass on the merits of the petitions and upheld the District Director's decision. In partial support of its ruling in Tai Mui, the Second Circuit cited the decision of the Eighth Circuit in Mendez v. Major, 340 F. 2d 128 (1965), in which it was held that Section 106 did not confer jurisdiction on courts of appeals to review a denial by a District Director of a waiver of an exchange visitor's foreign residence requirement. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in the cases of Cheng Fan Kwok v. INS and Chan Kwan Chung v. INS, No. 16005 and No. 16027 decided August 4, 1967, 381 F.2d 542, followed Tai Mui and declined to review the denial by a District Director of stays of deportation.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is being asked to pass on similar jurisdictional disputes under Section 106 in two appeals now pending before it. Butterfield v. INS seeks to review the denial of a visa petition. DeLucia v. INS, supra, seeks to review an alleged determination that an alien under order of deportation is a national of Italy. In its previous decision in Attorney General v. Bufalino, 371 F. 2d 738 (C.A.D.C. 1966), that Court ruled that a district court was precluded by Section 106 from entertaining a contention that the conduct of deportation proceeding violated a prior court directive, since all challenges to the deportation order had to be made under the exclusive remedy in the appropriate court of appeals provided by Section 106.

The conflicting interpretations of Section 106 by the various U.S. courts of appeals have created opportunities for delay of deportation through bifurcated remedies. This situation can be corrected only by an authoritative ruling of the Supreme Court or by legislative clarification of the statute. The need for clarifying legislation has been urged by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Tai Mui, supra, and by the Third Circuit in Cheng Fan Kwok, supra.

Some litigation has considered the application to deportation proceedings of the Supreme Court's well known decision in Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436 (1966), which held that a person in custody in criminal proceedings cannot be interrogated unless he is first warned of his right to remain silent and to be represented by counsel. In Nason v. INS, 370 F.2d 865 (C.A.2, 1967), it was argued that a statement taken by an immigration officer from Nason should not have been admitted as evidence in the deportation hearing because he was not advised that he might have a lawyer present at the interrogation. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit held that under the applicable law and regulations the absence of counsel did not render the statement inadmissible. In the earlier case of Ah Chiu Pang v. INS, 368 F. 2d 637 (C.A. 3, 1966), a similar argument was made to the Third Circuit relative to a statement made by Ah Chin Pang. The court sustained the admission of the statement into the deportation record stating that it was not prepared to extend to aliens in deportation proceedings the same immunities to be accorded defendants in criminal cases. Ah Chin Pang filed a petition for certiorari which was denied on May 8, 1967, 386 U.S. 1037. The Solicitor General in his memorandum in opposition to the petition of Ah Chin Pang informed the court that under the current practice persons in Service custody are not interrogated until they are given a warning concerning their right to remain silent and to be represented by counsel.

ALIEN ADDRESS REPORTS

In accordance with the requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 163), a total of 3,668,836 aliens reported their addresses to the Service in January 1967. This is an increase of 186,283 over 1966. Of the total, 3,210,768 were listed as permanent resident aliens and 458,068 as visitors, students, temporary workers, and others in the United States temporarily.

Almost three-fourths of the permanent resident aliens reside in the following eight States: California, 808,240 (25 percent); New York, 588,777 (18 percent); Texas, 230,344 (7 percent); Illinois, 213,104 (7 percent); New Jersey, 164,943 (5 percent); and Massachusetts, 131,489, Michigan, 129,482, and Florida, 112,705 (all with approximately 4 percent).

Again in 1967, Mexicans were the largest nationality group in the United States with 668,514 permanent resident aliens, an increase of 3 percent over 1966. Ninety-five percent of the Mexican nationals gave their addresses in just five States; over half of them were in California, almost 30 percent in Texas, 6 percent in Illinois, and 7 percent in Arizona and New Mexico combined.

The second largest group, Canadians, numbered 385,367. Again California took first place with 95,706 Canadians reporting their addresses in that State, 79,337 in the New England States, 46,141 in Michigan, 17,433 in Florida, and 16,097 in Washington.

ALIENS IN THE UNITED STATES IN JANUARY 1967

LEGEND

While not a true increase in population, but rather a transfer from the count of persons in temporary status, the Chinese showed the largest percentage increase (25 percent) with the Chinese permanent resident alien population up from 45,534 in 1966 to 56,770 in 1967. The Act of October 3, 1965 (79 Stat. 911), which permitted the Hong Kong parolees to have their status adjusted to permanent resident aliens after 2 years in the United States, was a major factor in this increase.

In 1967, there were 458,068 aliens who were in other than permanent resident status. Of this total, 169,339 were Cuban nationals, an increase of 30 percent over 1966. On November 6, 1965, negotiations were entered into by the United States to provide for the orderly movement of refugees to this country from Cuba. Since that time, from 3,000 to 4,000 refugees have arrived each month from Cuba. This accounts for much of the increase in the number of Cubans in temporary status.

CITIZENSHIP

The citizenship activities of the Service include: piloting the alien applicant for naturalization through the progressive steps to the court hearing and the final attainment of citizenship; providing certificates of proof of citizenship to children born abroad to citizen parents or to those who derive citizenship through the naturalization of parents; and fostering citizenship education in the schools and by meaningful naturalization ceremonies.

In the public interest, expeditions processing was given to all cases involving servicemen, their dependents, and other persons going abroad for Government employment or on American business or commercial ventures.

Naturalization Activities

Naturalizations Granted. During the fiscal year, 595 Federal and State courts in the United States, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands found 104,902 persons of 140 different foreign nationalities qualified for naturalization. After taking the oath to support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States, they became naturalized citizens. While the new citizens represented many diverse foreign nationalities and cultures, approximately half of them, in the pattern of former years, had their origin in a relatively few foreign countries, namely: Germany, 13,204; Italy, 10,572; the United Kingdom, 8,777; Canada, 8,120; Mexico, 6,044; and Cuba, 5,485.

Almost three-fourths of the new citizens had resided in the United States for at least 5 years as required by the general provisions of the naturalization law, whereas the next largest group, 16,778 in number, was comprised of the spouses of U.S. citizens who can be naturalized under the law after a lesser period of residence. Most of the others were 6,740 natural or adopted children of U.S.

citizens naturalized on petitions filed by their parents and 2,691 servicemen or veterans admitted to citizenship upon the basis of their military service. It is also interesting to note that, consistent with the record of the past decade, naturalization of females exceeded that of males by approximately 13,000, and the females were on the average about 2 years younger than the males.

Many unusual human interest stories appeared upon the naturalization scene during the fiscal year. On June 12, in Santa Cruz, Calif., a superior court judge had the satisfaction and joy of presiding while his mother, 74 years of age, happily took the oath of allegiance which made her a citizen of the United States.

The concurrent admission to citizenship of several members of a single family is not uncommon, but on June 24, 1967, at Bogota, N.J., six brothers and sisters were naturalized together, while 2 days later, nine children of another family were admitted to citizenship by the Federal court in Providence, R.I. Seldom, if ever, have family admissions in the past involved so many members of an individual family.

Another unusual occurrence in one jurisdiction was the registration of 100 newly naturalized citizens as voters immediately following their naturalizations. The registrations were accomplished through the good offices of the election board which convened at the courthouse to permit compliance with the necessary formalities.

Among those naturalized during the year were quite a few persons in the 70- and 80-year age brackets. In the Federal courts in New York City and Brooklyn, Fanny Mathilda Peterson, 94 years of age, and Emanuel Vadala, 100 years of age, were also found eligible for citizenship. In other courts, a blind person was awarded the privilege despite the handicap of his affliction, and a deaf-mute was able to qualify through the services of a sign language interpreter.

With the cooperation of the courts, the Service also was able to bring U.S. citizenship to persons whose infirmities and illness made it impossible for them to appear for naturalization at the courthouses. One petitioner, despite the gravity of her ill health, attempted to appear at the final court proceeding but, upon arrival at the courthouse, her condition was such that she could not leave the vehicle in which she arrived. Accordingly, despite inclement weather, the presiding judge with court and Service officers in attendance, held open court at the vehicle, the oath of allegiance was administered, and the petitioner received the citizenship she most earnestly desired.

Naturalizations denied. Of the 9,316 applicants for naturalization who failed in their efforts to become citizens during the fiscal year, 7,308 were persons who deferred filing their petitions after an examination by a Service officer establishing their ineligibility. They thereby saved themselves the petition fee, and unfruitful appearances before the courts. The Service policy of recommending such action in appropriate cases also saved the time of the courts and the Service, which would otherwise have been expended in the processing and disposition of the petitions.

The remaining 2,008 unsuccessful applicants filed petitions for naturalization which were denied by the courts. However, 1,831 of these petitions were not judicially considered upon the merits, but were routinely denied because the petitioners had elected to withdraw or not prosecute them, and did not attend the court proceeding. Generally, such withdrawals or failures to prosecute are fathered by petitioners' realizations that they cannot meet one or more of the statutory requirements for naturalization, that the courts would probably deny their petitions, and that without the reward of citizenship the time and money involved would not be worth the court appearance. The remaining 177 petitions were denied on the merits of the cases.

The following table shows reasons for denial on merits, and those denied because withdrawn or not prosecuted.

Petitions for Naturalization Denied on Merits, on Grounds of "Petition Withdrawn" and on Grounds of "Petition not Prosecuted," by Reasons; Year Ended June 30, 1967

Under the naturalization law, an unsuccessful attempt to become a naturalized citizen does not necessarily mean that the petitioner will be forever barred from becoming a citizen. Accordingly, unsuccessful candidates were fully advised by the naturalization examiners as to what they must do to eventually attain eligibility and, if possible, as to when in the future they might renew their efforts to become citizens with reasonable assurance of success.

Citizenship Education. Save for elderly, long-time resident aliens, every naturalization applicant is statutorily required to have a speaking, reading, and writing knowledge of the English language, and all such applicants, without exception, must acquire a reasonable understanding of the U.S. Constitution, the processes of government, and the more important aspects of American history. It is patent that such skills and knowledge are essential if the naturalized citizen is to play an active role in the community, and effectively fulfill his obligations as a citizen. Therefore, an important aspect of Service responsibility in the naturalization area, recognized by the statute, relates to citizenship education.

During the fiscal year, in order to assure newly arrived immigrants the earliest possible opportunity to prepare themselves educationally for citizenship, 150,797 names and addresses were furnished local public schools so that the educational authorities could invite the immigrants to attend citizenship classes for appropriate instruction and training. For the first time, the Service broadened this program to include the many thousands of nonimmigrants who, after their arrival in the United States became potential applicants for naturalization, by adjusting their status to that of immigrant. To assure maximum follow-up action by the schools, as necessary, they were also furnished similar informational notifications when the aliens actually applied for naturalization, or their petitions were continued for further study. Referrals in these categories during the fiscal year totaled 31,522.

The 6,103 public school citizenship classes in operation throughout the United States during the fiscal year were attended by 134,138 actual or potential candidates for naturalization. The naturalization examiner force continued the practice of visiting these study groups periodically to give any needed advice and assistance to instructors and students, and to assure a continued effective cooperative relationship between the educational authorities and the Service. These visits have proved a productive means of encouraging the continued maintenance of needed classes and the continued attendance of the students.

Once again, units of the Federal Textbook on Citizenship, especially the relatively new Service publications comprising the "Becoming a Citizen Series," namely, "Our American Way of Life," "Our United States," "Our Government," and a related "Teacher's Guide" were extensively used by the public schools as the basis for instruction and study in the citizenship classes. During the fiscal year, 94,098 copies of the textbooks were distributed to the public school authorities, without cost, as authorized by the statute.

For aliens wishing to become citizens who cannot attend public school citizenship classes, Service home study courses are administered by State universities or State educational authorities. There were 2,570 aliens enrolled in these courses during the fiscal year. They were supplied with Service textbooks, specially designed for use in connection with this method of preparation.

In the past year, the Service sought to emphasize the observance of law in relation to good citizenship and to stimulate the acceptance of citizenship responsibility by all citizens. Citizenship Day, Constitution Week, and Law Day, annually proclaimed by the President, constituted the principal settings for such activity in all parts of the United States. To make the public conscious of these commemorative occasions and their meaning, Service representatives sought the cooperation of press, radio, and television, and supplied appropriate publicity releases. The cooperation of citizens prominent in the life of the communities and of community organizations was also enlisted for the purpose of arranging public ceremonies. Wherever possible, the public programs provided for the appearance of naturalized citizens and the participation of Service officers. In many instances, final naturalization proceedings were conducted on Citizenship Day and Law Day, and formed an impressive part of the special observances. Quantities of the Citizenship Day Bulletin, a Service publication, were again distributed. They proved effective as a practical guide in planning suitable ceremonies and assuring a maximum of participation.

Legislation Affecting Naturalization Volume. Although the number of persons naturalized in each of the last 3 fiscal years leveled off at a figure slightly in excess of 100,000, there is a reasonable expectancy that this volume will begin to rise in the years immediately ahead. Justifying this projection is not only the increased level of immigration in each of the years comprising the significant period 1963-1966, but also the enactment of legislation during the fiscal year which authorized Cuban refugees to adjust their status to that of permanent resident. Because the date of adjustment is retroactive under the law, many of these aliens will be able to apply for naturalization within the next few years.

Other legislation pending in Congress, if approved, will also increase the naturalization potential. Under the present law, an exemption from the English language requirements is accorded only those applicants who, on December 24, 1952, were over 50 years of age and had been living in the United States for 20 years. Bills have been introduced which would advance the determinative date to a relatively recent one. With the enactment of such legislation into law, thousands of otherwise qualified aliens would become immediately eligible to apply for naturalization.

Also being considered is legislation designating the period of the South Vietnam hostilities as a time of war. This legislation, amendatory of the present law, would allow the immediate naturalization of aliens who have performed honorable military service for any length of time during the period.

Throughout the past year, in cooperation with the military authorities, servicemen from South Vietnam were flown to Hawaii or Guam, and were expeditiously naturalized under a special Service program before being returned to combat duty. However, these former aliens were able to qualify under other naturalization provisions. Enactment of the proposed legislation would broaden the scope of this program considerably in the coming year.

Derivative Citizenship Certificates

Throughout the fiscal year, 33,123 citizens who acquired citizenship status at birth abroad through U.S. citizen parents, or after birth as the result of the naturalization of a parent or parents, or by marriage to a U.S. citizen prior to September 22, 1922, applied for certificates of citizenship. In the three categories mentioned, certificates made available during the period totaled 15,918, 16,710, and 493, respectively. Issued by the Service only after interviews with the parties and the presentation of competent evidence establishing that the applicant became a citizen in the manner alleged, these certificates are acceptable everywhere as proof of the holder's status as a citizen.

Implementation of Public Law 89-710, signed by the President on November 2, 1966, made its contribution to the volume of certificates of citizenship issued. Pursuant to provisions of the present and earlier statutes, a very considerable number of persons born and residing in the Panama Canal Zone (a leasehold, but not a part of the United States) and the Republic of Panama acquired citizenship at birth through their parents. However, the overwhelming majority of these citizens, estimated to total approximately 5,000, have never obtained the certificate of citizenship because the statutes required delivery of the document to be made within the United States. By designating the Canal Zone as a part of the United States for such purposes, Public Law 710 eliminated this impasse. Pursuant to this remedial legislation, and with the fullest cooperation of the Canal Zone authorities, the Service embarked on a program of constructive action to supply the needs of these citizens. During a pilot detail to the Canal Zone in December 1966, a certificate of citizenship was issued and delivered in that leasehold for the first time in history. Since then, 700 additional applications have been received from residents of the Canal Zone and the Republic of Panama, and a total of 300 certificates have been furnished them. Further details to the Isthmus are planned for the months ahead to process an expected steady influx of applications.

As in years gone by, the factors which produced the substantial volume of derivative citizenship casework during the year just ended, included the extensive involvement abroad of U.S. citizens, the policy of the military authorities to encourage servicemen to obtain certificates for their dependents, the implementation of that policy by the Service, the extent to which Government agencies insist upon the presentation of the certificate by those persons seeking benefits under Federal or State laws based upon their derivative citizenship, and the effective Service practice of notifying every newly naturalized citizen of the derivative rights of his children and of the procedure leading to the issuance of the certificate.

Other Citizenship Activities

Other Nationality Documents Issued. Frequently overshadowed by the greater demands in the major workload areas are the processing and adjudication of other nationality applications, such as replacing certificates of naturalization and citizenship and declarations of intention that have been lost, mutilated, or destroyed. In addition, naturalized citizens whose names have been changed by marriage or court order may be issued certificates reflecting the new name. Other documents issued are special certificates of naturalization to be used by naturalized citizens in obtaining recognition as such by foreign states, and the administrative issuance of certifications for use in compliance with State and Federal statutes, or in any judicial proceeding. Under present procedures, the various documents usually are issued and delivered immediately following a hearing conducted within a relatively short time after receipt of the application. There were 8,584 applications of the types mentioned completed during fiscal year 1967, and it is expected that this level will be maintained during the next fiscal year. Plans for the fullest compliance with the new public information law (Public Law 90-23, effective July 4, 1967), in its relationship to naturalization and citizenship matters, were also formulated during the past year.

Loss of Citizenship. The U.S. Supreme Court in Beys Afroyim v. Rusk, a case decided on May 29, 1967, reversed its previous position taken 9 years before in Perez v. Brownell and ruled that the law providing for a loss of citizenship by voting in a foreign political election violated the U.S. Constitution. A voluntary exercise of the franchise in a foreign state has been a recognized statutory ground of expatriation since January 13, 1941, and, during the past decade alone, almost 10,000 citizens were found to have suffered a loss of citizenship upon that basis. However, with the entry of the Afroyim decision, such findings became invalid and the expatriates are regarded as not having lost their status as citizens by voting. Procedures designed to adjust these situations are already in effect. New or pending cases involving the issue will of course be resolved in accordance with the Afroyim decision. Moreover, upon application, decided cases will be reopened and readjudicated upon the same premise, and where naturalization documents have been surrendered to the Service pursuant to an erroneous determination of citizenship loss, they will be returned to the citizens.

As a result of the ruling in Afroyim and the Supreme Court's invalidation of other statutory grounds of expatriation in earlier decisions, the number of persons losing citizenship during the fiscal year totaled only 2,010. Among this number were 921 citizens who were expatriated by obtaining naturalization in, or taking an oath of allegiance to, a foreign state; 485 citizens among the residue lost their citizenship by renouncing the status before an American consular officer abroad, while 126 others underwent expatriation by serving in the armed forces of a foreign state. As distinguished from loss of nationality by operation of the statute, eight citizens were divested of their status in judicial proceedings because their naturalizations were fraudulent or illegal.

Personnel. The Service emphasized the importance of employee development and training. The following programs were conducted at the Service's Officer Development Center: a 2-week Executive Development Seminar for 20 persons; three Patrol Inspector Trainee sessions of 13 weeks each with 201 graduates; two 2-week sessions for 39 Senior Patrol Inspectors; and operational conferences for 42 Supervisory Investigators and 29 Sector Supervisors.

Service employees completed 2,408 lessons in the Extension Training Program. Employees of other agencies completed 350 lessons. This program consists of 12 home-study or correspondence courses which are available to any employee who desires, through self-study, to improve himself at any time in his career and according to his own time schedule.

The Service planned and conducted 20 separate training programs for 70 foreign officials from 21 countries. These officials received on-the-job training and special briefings in records administration, border patrol, detention and deportation, and travel control activities.

In the field of employee-management cooperation, a record number of requests (22) for formal and exclusive recognition were received from employee organizations. Nine exclusive and 11 formal recognitions were granted. Formal replies relating to union matters other than recognition were prepared in 45 separate instances.

Incentive Awards. There were 82 suggestions processed by the Service Incentive Awards Committee. Approved were 224 outstanding performance ratings, and 44 recommendations for quality increases, three for special acts, and 60 for sustained superior performance awards. Guidelines for the submission and evaluation of performance awards and quality increase recommendations were refined and issued to all regions.

Finance. The accounting system of this Service was approved by the Comptroller General of the United States on April 18, 1967. This represents the culmination of several years' efforts to provide an accounting system that conforms in all respects with the principles, standards, and related requirements of the Comptroller General.

Delivery of employee biweekly salary checks was advanced 4 days by reducing the pay lag. One region, on a test basis, was authorized to have the Treasury Department mail salary checks direct to the home. This further reduced the pay lag.

A considerable amount of research and compilation was completed in connection with claims. Of particular note was the work performed on 114 claims filed under decisions rendered by the U.S. Court of Claims (e.g., Lloyd G. Bishop, et al., No. 150-63; and Kenneth S. Adams, et al., No. 66-59). In addition, a claim for damage to an employee's personal property was settled under Public Law 89-185, and over 50 tort claims against the Service were paid.

Under Public Law 89-516, several new benefits became payable to employees who changed official stations. Most significant among the new benefits was the payment of temporary subsistence allowances, real estate expense allowances, and miscellaneous moving expense allowances. Also the maximum weight limit on household goods and personal effects that may be shipped or stored was increased.

At the end of calendar year 1966, the Payroll Units of the Central and Regional Offices distributed Forms W-2, employee tax withholding statements, with the salary checks dated December 30, 1966. This included the withholding and reporting of taxes for 28 States and the District of Columbia.

Procurement and Property Management. Meeting new and recurring obligations through the use of more ingenuity rather than more dollars was emphasized.

The computer orientation of the Service Look-out Book was completed. In addition to the increase of accuracy and speed of production, costs were reduced substantially.

Records. This activity involves the custody and maintenance of all the records of the Service. The immigrant visas submitted by immigrants at time of admission are placed in active case files by one of the 48 files control offices in the area where the immigrant resides. Case files are also opened for other persons subject to action by the Service. There were 813,349 new files prepared, including over 360,000 files for new immigrants.

More than 2.6 million documented nonimmigrants were admitted to the United States during the fiscal year. The arrival departure records, Form I-94, are the basis for nonimmigrant control of aliens admitted for temporary periods. These records are joined with prior records in the master index, maintained in accordance with the provisions of Section 290(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. By the end of the fiscal year, the master index had grown to more than 47 million cards, including a card for each Service case file.

Statistics. The work measurement system was a much used tool in the management improvement programs of the Service.

Fiscal 1967 was the first full year in which the Act of October 3, 1965 (Public Law 89-236), was in effect. Statistics on the relationships between the various preference classes of admission and the new numerical ceiling of 170,000 have, therefore, been of particular interest. Public Law 89-236 also provided that a numerical limit of 120,000 for Western Hemisphere countries should be made a controlling factor for such immigration beginning July 1, 1968. The law also provided that before that date a Select Commission on Western Hemisphere Immigration should study the problems and come up with recommendations for the administration of the 120,000 ceiling or recommend other courses of action. The Statistics Branch worked closely with the Commission staff, and furnished tables and explanatory notes to the Commission.

Another area of great interest has been the so-called brain drain. A number of agencies and Congressional committees were provided with detailed statistics on the flow of immigrants in the professional and highly skilled occupations being admitted to the United States by occupations and countries.

Other items of study were the increasing numbers of illegal entrants, and the relationship of this factor to the volume of detention, deportation, and voluntary departure. Other statistics compiled included those on naturalization, passenger travel, nonimmigrant visitors, and alien address reports.

Building Program. Under the terms of the Convention Treaty exchange with Mexico—the Chamizal Boundary Treaty—all Federal inspection facilities in El Paso, Tex., had to be relocated. Plans and specifications for the new Border Patrol Sector Headquarters and Alien Detention Facility were prepared by this Service and a contract awarded June 16, 1966. Final inspection has been made and the buildings are ready for occupancy. Cost of the project was $960,000.

The contract for construction of the border stations at Cordova Island and Santa Fe Bridge was awarded by the General Services Administration in the amount of $3,147,400 in November 1966. Notice to proceed was forwarded November 15, 1966, and the project is estimated to be 90 percent completed.

Five projects at border ports were completed jointly with the Bureau of Customs. Two border patrol stations were built and five border inspection stations were improved by GSA with the active coordination and cooperation of this Service.

Liaison was maintained with GSA on review of requirements for a number of other new buildings or improvement projects. Another on-going project was the study and recommendation for improvement of Service space in Federal office buildings or Government-owned buildings.

TABLE 13. IMMIGRATION BY COUNTRY, FOR DECADES:
1820 - 1967 ^{1/}

^{1/}From 1820 to 1867 figures represent alien passengers arrived; 1868 to 1891 inclusive and 1895 to 1897 inclusive, immigrant aliens arrived; 1892 to 1894 inclusive and from 1898 to present time immigrant aliens admitted. Date for years prior to 1906 relate to country whence alien came; thereafter to country of last permanent residence. Because of changes in boundaries and changes in lists of countries, data for certain countries are not comparable throughout.^{2/}

1/ Cases of 90 persons expatriated for departing from or remaining away from the U.S. to avoid military service, reported for 1958-1963, were not included because this statutory provision was ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court on February 18, 1963. (Kennedy v. Francisco Mendoza-Martinez (372 U.S. 144) and Rusk v. Joseph Henry Cort (372 U.S. 224)).

2/ The Supreme Court decision in Afroyim v. Rusk (387 U.S. 253, May 29, 1967), ruled as unconstitutional the law providing for a loss of citizenship by voting in a foreign political election.

3/ The Supreme Court decision in Schneider v. Rusk (377 U.S. 163, May 18, 1964), ruled as unconstitutional statutory provisions which cause naturalized citizens to lose their nationality by extended residence abroad.

4/ Naturalized U.S. citizens expatriated in countries with which the United States has treaties or conventions providing on a reciprocal basis for loss of nationality through extended residence in the country of original citizenship.
